

Hurried Conference of State Department Chiefs Called Today

Germany's Notice of Withdrawal From Disarmament Conference Takes American Officials By Surprise—President To Get Report.

Washington, Oct. 14 (AP).—Germany's notice of withdrawal from the disarmament conference and the League of Nations sent reverberations through official and diplomatic Washington today, one immediate result being a hurried conference of state department chiefs.

Immediately on receiving the news, Secretary Hull called in Undersecretary William Phillips and Pierrepoint Moffat, in direct charge of western European affairs and an armaments limitation expert, to discuss American policy.

Later the secretary of state expected to lay a detailed report before President Roosevelt. First advice reaching the White House were received without official comment.

To allow time for assembling all possible information before speaking on the matter, Hull postponed his daily press conference from 10:30 a. m. until after noon.

The sudden move of the Hitler government took American officials by surprise.

Through Norman H. Davis, chief of the American delegation at Geneva, the United States has been striving to exert a conciliating influence in the hope of bringing Germany and France into some sort of accord.

The German action was seen as making the task of conciliation difficult if not impossible, although it was indicated that renewed efforts will be made to use the good offices of the United States to move Germany from its stand.

While officials deferred statements pending full reports from the ambassador at Berlin and from Mr. Davis, they were plainly concerned and uncertain as to where the developments might lead.

The action was widely viewed as a serious blow to the cause of world peace and as a serious threatening element in an already tense European situation resulting from French distrust of the Hitler government.

To Open Inquiry Into Chase Securities

Washington, Oct. 14 (AP).—New evidence of bankers' practices and profits, gleaned from the books of Dillon, Read and Company, was before Senate investigators today as they turned toward operations of the Chase Security Corporation which have been under scrutiny for months.

The Dillon, Read inquiry was concluded yesterday with a final burst of statistics intermingled with sharp words between Clarence Dillon, senior member, and Senator Couzens, outspoken Michigan Republican.

Amid the mass of figures bearing on the banking firm's operations was recorded a loan of $300,000 to Harvey C. Couch, now a director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in 1928. It was listed as only half paid at the end of 1931.

Tuesday the committee will open its long contemplated inquiry into the Chase Securities Corporation, affiliate of the Chase National Bank.

In its final scrutiny of the Dillon, Read records the committee turned up statistics showing the firm managed 64 pools, syndicates and joint accounts during the five years from 1927 to 1931, inclusive, and participated in almost 550 others managed by someone else.

Other figures disclosed the banking firm made profits of nearly $24,000,000 during the five year period from issues of stocks and bonds.

New Turning Point Reached By NRA

Recovery Unit Faced With Having To Make Good Its Claim That Removal of Blue Eagle Would Be Terrible Punishment, Even "Economic Death."

Washington, Oct. 14 (AP).—A swift succession of events this week brought NRA to a new turning point, at which its influence and future course appear to depend largely upon impending decisions of its leaders, and the outcome of the re-employment census under way today all over the nation.

The recovery unit was faced with having to make good its claim that removal of the Blue Eagle, done now in a few instances, would be a terrible punishment, even "economic death" to citizens or risk collapse of the whole voluntary movement for higher wages and more jobs. Hugh S. Johnson and his aides intended to make certain there would be no public apathy toward this enforcement, and action was due.

A public pronouncement and formal decision on the minimum price control provisions of the retail code, which are slated for drastic revision and elimination of "markups," was promised. Johnson faced here a real dilemma. A volume of farm sentiment hostile to NRA as the promoter of the fortunes of industrial and commercial workers and higher costs for the farmer, has been reported to him as being concentrated against the "markups," with the idea these will increase the spread between prices at which they sell and those at which they buy.

On the other hand, an overwhelming proportion of the country's retail merchants, officials say, have their hearts set upon minimum prices ten per cent or seven per cent above the cost of goods as delivered to them. In the analysis, the decision was up to President Roosevelt.

The judicial arm of NRA, the National Labor Board, next week will have to make a decision. Its chairman, Senator Wagner of New York, has said flatly and uncompromisingly that Kentucky coal mine operators who ignored the board's summons to an arbitration meeting will be made to come in. They have challenged the industrial law already in public refusal to deal with the United Mine Workers.

The present census was to tell whether the blue eagle did its job. Three million employers have been given cards on which they will indicate what the payroll and number of employees is today and what it was on July 27.

The best guess today is three million new jobs. If the figure drops below that, it may be necessary to revise codes to establish an average work week of thirty hours instead of the prevailing 40. It may be necessary to apply external aids of a financing nature in even greater degree than the credit expansion and deposit releasing program now mapped out.

BENEFIT MOVIE AND REVUE PLANNED AT WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Oct. 14.—With a benefit performance at Firemen's Hall, Woodstock, promised in the very near future and a big home-talent revue shortly after November 15, to be directed by Frank Scully, playwright, author of the recent Broadway success, "Fun in Bed," the Woodstock Community Association plans to keep members and potential members active and interested in the organization's aims and aspirations throughout the fall and winter.

The directors of the association met recently and drew up a list of possible hit movies and submitted it to Curtis Wheat, director of presentations at the village theatre. Mr. Scully, at present a guest at the J. P. McEvoy house, Bearsville Road, is engaged in some pressing work connected with his profession and will be unable to devote any time to the revue until the date mentioned. It is expected that the success will be in the nature of the success for his staged for the past two summers by the Country Club, and that the skills will be approximately ten minutes long.

INVESTIGATORS BELIEVE EXPLOSION WRECKED PLANE

Chicago, Oct. 14 (AP).—Spurred on by a scientific report supporting the theory that an explosion wrecked the Newark to Chicago airliner near Chesterton, Ind., investigators today were determined to learn further details of the disaster. Seven persons died when the plane, operated by the United Airlines, fell last Tuesday night.

The scientific evidence, uncovered by experts at Northwestern University Crime Detection Laboratory, was revealed by D. B. Colver, vice-president of the line. He said microscopic examination of the debris showed an explosion was responsible. No motive was uncovered, but Melvin H. Parrish, Chicago chief of the Government Bureau of Investigation, said the inquiry was far from finished.

Governor Calls Special Session

New York, Oct. 14 (AP).—Although lacking agreement between Republicans and Democrats over the proposed New York city financing legislation, Governor Lehman has issued a call for the legislature to meet in extraordinary session at noon next Wednesday.

Thurs governor announced the convening of the special session last night after conferring with Senator John J. Dunningan, Democratic leader of the senate; Senator George R. Fearon, Republican leader, and Assemblyman Irwin Steingut, Democratic assembly leader.

He sought support for the passage of the financing legislation, but Senator Fearon declined to give Republican support unless the Democratic leaders promised aid in passing legislation for a long term bond issue for Rochester and other communities in Monroe county.

This Senator Dunningan declined to give. The measure for which Fearon sought support was defeated by the Democrats in the last two sessions.

As control of the legislature is divided between the two parties, the city will be unable to set its bills passed so long as the deadlock remains unbroken.

The city's bills are designed to permit the city to set up special sinking funds as a guaranty that the bankers will be repaid if they undertake the refunding of $153,000,000 in outstanding revenue bonds and the creation of a $200,000,000 revolving fund for the convenience of the city during the next four years.

In calling the special session, Governor Lehman described the city's situation as "so grave and fraught with such great import to the people of the city and state that I can allow nothing to cause further delay in the convening of the legislature, regardless of the attitude of the legislative leaders."

Gravest News in 20 Years, Declare French

Paris, Oct. 14 (AP).—A French spokesman today characterized the announcement of Germany's intention to withdraw from the Disarmament Conference and the League of Nations as "the gravest news in twenty years."

The news was flashed to the cabinet while it was in session discussing the armaments situation.

A foreign office spokesman commented as follows: "France has done what she could to achieve disarmament. Her views are shared by the United States and Great Britain, and now it is perfectly clear where Germany stands."

The cabinet discussion of the German stand was informal because the session had been adjourned shortly before Joseph Paul-Boncour, the French foreign minister, telephoned from Geneva.

The ministers themselves refrained from public comment, but privately it was indicated they viewed Chancellor Hitler's decision as grave and construed it as justification for France's firm stand.

ANTI-SEMITISM EMPHASIZED IN LUTHER FESTIVAL WEEK

Eisenach, Germany, Oct. 14 (AP).—Nazi anti-Semitism is being emphasized anew in the annual observance of Luther festival week.

Reich Bishop Ludwig Mueller, inaugurating the week with an anti-Semitic address, told his hearers to refer to the New Testament and "read what Christ said."

"You'll see," he added, "that Christianity grew out of a fight against Jewry. This Jewry, even today, is a bitter enemy of Christianity."

"He therefore who desires not to serve the interests of Judah must open his eyes and join the ranks of Christ's soldiers, thus becoming a witness of the truth whereof Christ himself gave testimony."

Concluding, he praised Chancellor Hitler's "boundless faith in God."

Hitler Serves Notice Germany Will Withdraw From League

German Chancellor Says His Country Will Withdraw From League of Nations in Two Years, and Will Not Attend Disarmament Conference—Hitler's Statement.

Berlin, Oct. 14 (AP).—By one of the boldest strokes of official action taken since his assumption of power, Chancellor Adolf Hitler today served notice on the League of Nations that Germany will withdraw two years hence, and on the disarmament conference that the Reich no longer finds it possible to continue its attendance.

To demonstrate to the world that all Germany stands behind the chancellor's foreign policy, President Paul Von Hindenburg ordered the dissolution of the Reichstag and all the state parliaments and set new Reichstag elections for Nov. 12.

The Reichstag balloting will be so conducted that a vote for Nazi members will at the same time mean an endorsement of the government's course.

The Reichstag elections were set for November 12.

Dr. Joseph Goebbels, minister of public enlightenment and propaganda, read to the assembled newspapermen the chancellor's solemn appeal from which it appeared Germany was leaving the disarmament conference because the other nations were unwilling to concede to the Reich the equality promised December 11, 1932.

"The great powers promised Germany a virtual equality of armaments last December in a dramatic Geneva session in which the Reich delegates threatened to walk out."

The text of the Hitler appeal follows: "Filled with an honest desire to carry through the work of the peaceful internal reconstruction of our people and its political and economic life, the former German governments declare themselves ready trusting they would be conceded an equality worthy of Germany, to enter the League of Nations to participate in the disarmament conference."

"Therein Germany was bitterly disappointed, despite all readiness to pursue the disarmament which we were the first to execute. It necessary to its very last consequences, the other governments could not bring themselves to make good the assurances signed by them in the peace treaty."

"Through the conscious denial to Germany of a real moral and objective quality, the German people and their government were again humiliated."

"After the Reich's government, in consequence of the German equality vouchsafed to it December 11, 1932, again declared itself ready to participate in the discussions of the disarmament conference, the official representatives of the other states now have informed the Reich's foreign minister and our delegates in public speeches and direct declaration that this equality for the time being can no longer be conceded to the present day Germany."

"As the Reich's government sees in this manner of procedure a discrimination against the German people as unjust as it is humiliating, it deems itself unable under the circumstances as a second-class nation deprived of the rights to continue to participate in the negotiations which thereby could only lead to new dictates."

"In again expressing its unshakable will to peace, the German government declares in view of these humiliating and dishonoring demands that it must, to its deepest regret, leave the disarmament conference. For the same reason it will also give notice of its resignation from the League."

"This decision, together with a renewed avowal of the policy of the sincerest will to peace and a readiness for reconciliation, the German government lays before the German people, asking it to express its position thereon."

"It expects from them a manifestation of a similar love of peace and a readiness for peace, but also of a similar conception of honor and a similar determination."

"As chancellor of the German Reich, therefore, I proposed to the Reich's president to lay this policy of the Reich's government as a visible expression of the united will of the government and the people before the nation for a plebiscite, and to dissolve the German Reichstag in order to give the German people thereby an opportunity to elect those members who as the convicted representatives of this policy of peace and honor can give the people the guarantee of an undoubted safeguarding of its interests along these lines."

"As chancellor of the national socialist movement, I am convinced that the entire nation will unanimously rally behind a confession of political faith and a decision that springs equally from a love for our people and a respect for her honor, and from the conviction that the goal of world peace so necessary for all can be reached only if the conception of the victor and the vanquished is supplanted by a just application of the same vital right for all."

Milk Association Pays Fine of $200

The board also announced that the dairy today paid to the Rochester association a sum of about $50, representing the difference between the price for which it obtained the cream and the price it should have paid. This payment to the association was ordered by the control board.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—Was former Senator James Watson's Chicago speech attacking the Roosevelt administration the opening gun of a general barrage all along the republican front?

There's been interest here in that question since the one-time Indiana senator said something to say about the "self-imposed" silence of his party. The inference would seem to be that he thought the time was at hand for the G. O. P. faithful to get busy.

Certainly he did his part. Reports of the rally in Chicago are that he consumed two hours and a half making his speech.

Whether his fellow republicans will take his advice remains to be seen. Such a course has been discouraged by some of the party leaders so far.

Small Tried It
BERT SNELL, republican leader of the house, let loose a blast at the democrats at the end of the special session. It is no secret that some of his colleagues were displeased, and urged that he not repeat.

Everett Sanders, chairman of the republican national committee, conceived the idea of holding a series of regional revival meetings after the smoke of the presidential election had cleared away. But he can-noted his plans. Later he took a vacation in Europe.

Some regard it significant that Senator McNary, republican leader in the senate and generally credited as being one of the shrewdest of the G. O. P. chieftains, has had nothing to say publicly. His policy has been one of silence clear through.

A Republican View
A PROMINENT republican who held a high position in the last administration made this observation recently in discussing the party's outlook:

"It is my belief that the republican party today is in better shape than any party has ever been which has just suffered a major defeat."

He said that his party has employed few obstructive tactics since it has been in the minority and that as a result is stronger. He believes firmly that a political organization is in the most advantageous position to grasp every opportunity that comes along.

"We probably would have smashed the party beyond all hope of repair," he says, "had we, from the start, embarked upon a campaign of criticism."

"The country wouldn't have stood for it. No one knew that better than we."

"As it is, we stand with our hands clean politically. When the occasion arises we will be in a position to make the most of it."

with indications of general but jerky progress in both.

A cycle seems to have ended, too, in college life. The grand secretary of one of the national fraternities reports that college men are settling down and growing up. Fraternity life has been deflated like life in the outer world, paying the penalty of the reckless over-living of the '20s. Colleges, social activities and college boys are all down. The fraternity men have improved their relationship with their national average is above that of non-fraternity men. Here is a change, indeed, when college boys with superior advantages actually use them for self-improvement.

"When Emil Ludwig was here the other day," writes a Chicago columnist, "he wanted to know what part the American university student was playing in the social upheaval. He had to be told that for the most part the university student didn't know there was one." It is the literal truth. And most of us are so accustomed to this cheerful indifference of the American student that we accept it as the normal thing. Observant travelers agree that foreign students are much more mature, much more aware of what is going on in the world, and much more interested in it. But then, they do not have our competitive athletics to absorb their mental energies.

"The effects of alcohol cannot be repeated, and the children will be the sufferers," says Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, speaking in Jamestown, N. Y. "The liquor traffic cannot exist without customers, and the customers of the next generation must be drawn from the youth of today." Repeal of prohibition, she adds, would bring an "appalling situation," because under new conditions both men and women would drink; whereas before prohibition "men were mostly the victims."

A reader may wonder where Mrs. Boole has been during these prohibition years, in which the women have been dripping with the men, and sometimes by themselves, too. It is strange how many high-minded and well meaning people are scared from necessary changes by fear of future evils which already exist, and which realistic folk are determined to reform by practical means. The youth of today is already supplying customers, in unprecedented numbers, for harmful liquor. Another change is certain. Federal prohibition is doomed. And it seems fair to ask now what any organization standing for Temperance proposes to do about it.

BRITISH UMBRELLAS

An English railway system, having on hand a large number of lost and unclaimed umbrellas, is instituting a policy which it believes will benefit both itself and the public. Instead of keeping umbrellas tagged but idle on its lost-and-found shelves, it proposes to distribute them among its various station waiting rooms, to be rented for small sums to umbrella-less commuters caught in unexpected showers.

It seems a reasonable-enough plan. Certainly umbrellas on a shelf do no one any good. Yet any American who has traveled in the British Isles is astonished at the whole situation. Are there really persons in England who get separated from their umbrellas? Are there commuters who set forth, even on bright and sunny days, without big-handled umbrellas hanging from their arms? It is hard to believe. A major phenomenon of the British scene is the omnipresent rain deflector. No shower, it appears, can be sudden enough or unexpected enough to catch the populace unprepared. Perhaps all the lost umbrellas in the possession of the railway company once belonged to American tourists, and perhaps it will be American tourists who rent them for small sums in emergencies.

CONTRADICTORY POLICIES

Walter Lippmann, after a summer of vacation and meditation in the Maine woods, looking at our national merry-go-round from the outside, reappears in print with a simple explanation of something that has been puzzling millions of Americans—the apparent contradiction of many government policies. They really are contradictory, he says, and the conflict comes from this fact: that the present administration came into power with a two-fold mandate from the people—"to raise the country out of the depression and to inaugurate a new deal." There was to be an old-fashioned business recovery, and along with it there was to be a reconstruction of the economic system to prevent collapse in the future.

Either of these aims alone, however difficult, Lippmann suggests, might be carried out consistently. Together they naturally conflict with each other at many points. It is like driving two horses in different directions. One of the programs, perhaps, might have followed the other, thus simplifying both. But it is hard to say. The public wanted quick action on both, and the administration was willing to try it. The actual procedure might be described as quick alternation between the two.

Some years ago patients were doubtful when told that heart disease followed rheumatism. Rheumatism followed bad tonsils, and that bad tonsils must be removed to prevent further attacks of rheumatism and heart disease. Now this is so generally known that nothing is thought about it when the removal of affected tonsils is ordered.

Similarly with bad teeth and their effect upon the joints and muscles. When research men now are showing that frequent colds and sinus trouble are often due to the food eaten, many people will not believe it. Some months ago I spoke about the diet suggested by Dr. E. V. Lippmann, Portland, Oregon, in his book "Diet in Sinus Infections and Colds," who for some years has been able to keep many of his patients free from colds and sinus infections by the use of a special diet.

When the patient is afflicted with a number of colds every year or with a constant fullness in the sinuses of the face, he makes the following suggestions:

The patient is kept for two days entirely on a fruit and vegetable diet without milk, cheese, meat and starches—potatoes, bread, sugar.

On the third day he starts the regular or special diet used in these cases in which the acid foods are cut down, the neutral foods kept about the same, and the alkaline foods increased.

This means that such excellent body building foods as cereals, meats, fish and eggs must be cut down and also tea and coffee. Further, vegetable oils, butter and sugar must not be increased.

Finally, and this is the important point about the whole diet treatment, the following foods must be increased: Vegetables, fruits, milk, white potatoes and nuts. The use of salt must be omitted entirely, even the use of salt butter being forbidden.

After the colds have been cured and the sinus infection cleared up the patient is permitted to go back gradually to the use of the ordinary diet with just one suggestion to follow. He is advised to be always careful to eat enough alkaline food and to do without salt for at least two days each week. If these two days are faithfully kept, the amount of salt accumulated during the rest of the week will do no harm.

Certainly it is worth this sacrifice to be rid of frequent colds and sinus trouble.

DIET IN SINUS INFECTIONS

Some years ago patients were doubtful when told that heart disease followed rheumatism. Rheumatism followed bad tonsils, and that bad tonsils must be removed to prevent further attacks of rheumatism and heart disease. Now this is so generally known that nothing is thought about it when the removal of affected tonsils is ordered.

Similarly with bad teeth and their effect upon the joints and muscles. When research men now are showing that frequent colds and sinus trouble are often due to the food eaten, many people will not believe it. Some months ago I spoke about the diet suggested by Dr. E. V. Lippmann, Portland, Oregon, in his book "Diet in Sinus Infections and Colds," who for some years has been able to keep many of his patients free from colds and sinus infections by the use of a special diet.

When the patient is afflicted with a number of colds every year or with a constant fullness in the sinuses of the face, he makes the following suggestions:

The patient is kept for two days entirely on a fruit and vegetable diet without milk, cheese, meat and starches—potatoes, bread, sugar.

On the third day he starts the regular or special diet used in these cases in which the acid foods are cut down, the neutral foods kept about the same, and the alkaline foods increased.

This means that such excellent body building foods as cereals, meats, fish and eggs must be cut down and also tea and coffee. Further, vegetable oils, butter and sugar must not be increased.

Finally, and this is the important point about the whole diet treatment, the following foods must be increased: Vegetables, fruits, milk, white potatoes and nuts. The use of salt must be omitted entirely, even the use of salt butter being forbidden.

After the colds have been cured and the sinus infection cleared up the patient is permitted to go back gradually to the use of the ordinary diet with just one suggestion to follow. He is advised to be always careful to eat enough alkaline food and to do without salt for at least two days each week. If these two days are faithfully kept, the amount of salt accumulated during the rest of the week will do no harm.

Certainly it is worth this sacrifice to be rid of frequent colds and sinus trouble.

Outrageous Fortune

By Patricia Montecarlo

REYNOLDS, By James Carroll. The tale of a fantastic story, claimed as a husband by the schoolboy, is told by James Carroll. The schoolboy, who kept a general store in Michigan Street, sat primly by the side of his seat, dandy blue serge coat and skirt. They were identical tucked muslin blouses with high collars and rolled gold collar-supports, and twin hats of dark blue straw with plain black ribbons.

The schoolboy next to them was, immersed in the latest mystery thriller. The old gentleman with the beard went on filling his pipe. And the young married couple opposite, Caroline continued to hold one another's hands.

Scalia have no charm to unite a carriage full of strangers in a common bond of interest. But no sooner had the stout woman pronounced the name Van Berg than everyone had something to say.

"It's a queer thing they don't seem to catch the man that shot Mr. Van Berg," she said, and the schoolboy emerged from his thriller with a jerk.

"They say they've got a clue," he began.

"That doesn't mean very much," said the old man. He tapped his pipe. "The sort of thing they say to keep the public quiet—like throwing a bone to a dog."

The girl with the large blue eyes rolled them at the shy young man and giggled.

The stout woman fanned herself. "I was up at the Hall yesterday—" "Packham Hall?" said both Miss Borings together.

THE stout woman nodded.

"Cook's my brother's second wife's cousin-in-law, and I took her over a couple of pots of honey. The shop stuffs that watered down she don't relish it, so I took her some of mine—never been before where they didn't keep their own bees, and don't like it."

"And then to have a murder, or next door to it, well, she don't think she'll stay—such an upset, and what she's used to. Why, when she heard the shot, she came over that queer she couldn't have got out of bed, not if it had been the house on fire."

"Mrs. Rogers," she says—that being my name—"Mrs. Rogers, I give you my solemn identical word, I just pulled the clothes over my head and waited to see if I was going to be murdered in my bed. She don't look her right color yet."

"I don't know how I should feel if I was to hear someone being shot in the middle of the night," said the young married woman.

"I know what you'd do," said her husband—"pinch me, same as you're doing now."

The girl giggled, and the Miss Borings coughed.

"Ah!" said Mrs. Rogers. "It isn't everyone that's got someone to pinch. I'm a widow myself, and so's Mrs. Henry that I've been telling you about. Her husband was a p'lice man, so it doesn't put her about having the police in and out and all over the place, as you might say—and maybe she'd got told a thing or two as she wouldn't have got told if it weren't for her husband's official position."

Everyone leaned forward a little. The shy young man burst into speech.

"Did she tell you whom they suspected?"

Mrs. Rogers shook her head.

"Were there any finger prints?" said the schoolboy. "They'll get him if there were."

"Ah!" said Mrs. Rogers darkly. "Well, I don't know as I ought to say, but seeing as we're all friends here—" She paused, fanning herself.

Caroline caught the inside of her lip between her teeth. Her hands held each other hard. A general murmur encouraged Mrs. Rogers to proceed.

"Well, it's something as hasn't got into the papers—I can tell you that—and everyone in the house told not to say a word. They'd have kept them from knowing if so be they could, but when there's a tray and glasses took for finger prints, there's going to be talk in the servants' hall whether or no."

"Ah—" said the old man with the beard.

Caroline's grip relaxed a trifle. She knew this already; it was what Jim had told her. But then it meant it meant he had remembered right!

Fall Fashion Shows Set High Standard

New York—Through the influence and entertaining custom of fashion shows given by retailers throughout the country, women by and large are kept interested and up to the minute in style. Seeing is believing as we fashion writers are glad that what we have been reporting, turns out to be true, and that you women can see for yourselves how things are going.

Highlights of the season are the little sparkling touches used to enliven dull materials and colors. One who knows how the style game is played, knows, once the word gets out, that muted colors and dull surfaced fabrics are the vogue, and that means sparkling or bright accessories. This season, it's the gold and silver touch that is most exciting. They are so unexpected in some cases, and unless overdressed, are so welcomed always. What nicer surprise could one give than to show a gleaming casquin or blouse of metal, or metal and on the removal of a coat that has perhaps impressed us more by its severity than anything?

Then those huge bracelets and brooches and what not. What a part they play this season.

It has become customary in fashion reporting to stress details at the expense of silhouette, but this season white details are even more worthwhile, silhouettes just cannot be lightly dismissed. To begin with they are too strikingly different, and too contradictory to be dismissed. One must obtain a long-legged look and something that passes as a naturally small waistline. Then one must learn to walk all over again because, while skirts cannot be said to be of the hobble variety, they certainly go in for knee restriction. Making up for it from there down may appear to help but as a matter of fact such skirts do need management.

Then there are the dozens upon dozens of sleeves all of which help in making the silhouette important, and those contradictory yokes and collar arrangements which are perhaps more instrumental than anything else in making a costume a success. Certainly no costume no matter how perfect otherwise is worth room in one's closet, if it has an unbecoming neck line. Fortunately there are no hard and fast rules concerning necklines although there is a decided preference for those that are as near the chin as possible.

Gowns for Gala Gatherings in the Latest Parisian Mood

Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild.

Black silk velvet makes the slinky princess gown at left, with its high neckline encircled by green satin stems which hold white satin arm lilies.

Something different in tunics suggesting a choir boy's coat is this one of white organdie embroidered with silver flowers, finely pleated and very crisp. It is posed over a dinner gown of black Lyon velvet with classic V decollete.

Models from Marcel Rochas.

Two evening gowns from Ardanse are illustrated. One is a slender sheath with long sleeves and built-up decollete but indubitably an evening gown; its fabric is a very supple black velvet, the yoke and flowerlike alcove being of flash colored tulle lightly embroidered with brilliants and silver beads.

The formal gown shows the retrospective influence so apparent in many collections, in its molded hips, the big bow drape at back, and the square cut front decollete. It is of lacquered black lace over a crepe slip cut short enough to show the ankles. Another of the season's style features is this tendency to show the feet in evening gowns, by slitting the hems or by short foundations under transparent skirts.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

The wide brimmed hat worn straight or tilted, and with shallow molded crown or one manipulated for irregular height, is getting recognition.

When it is worn with the cloth trotteur, it may be of felt or imperial velvet, the crown Tyrolean, for the velvet afternoon costume, it assumes shallow crown proportions with flattering brimlines frequently enhanced by a glycerined ostrich plume or a demure tip, which emphasized the forward movement. In felt, they are particularly interesting as a rather new type, so different from the cloche genre which has predominated in tailored felts. The broader brim, found flattering by so many women this summer, attempts to continue in fall and winter versions.

The fashion for big jewelry is getting bigger and bigger. Since the debut of a few large size imports a short time ago, has apparently entered a made contest to present things more and more huge, and the result is startling.

Ball motifs of all sorts register, very often forming a heavy-looking dash to multi-strand and showed necklaces, bracelets and clips. "Heavy-looking" is especially mentioned, since this appearance seems to be an essential of the new jewelry. Invariably combined with an extreme of light weight. The point should be accented to customers.

Chinese embroidery. Chinese colors, Chinese silhouette and sometimes even Chinese character buttons make for a thoroughly Chinese effect in tunic. Some of them, like the one sketched, are embroidered all over in the most lavish Oriental motifs and colors. Tinsel threads mingle with lacquer red, jade green, rich blue, and satin is the fabric choice so that the effect is not unlike Chinese tapestries.

Green flannel is to be featured by Dilkusha for sports and resorts clothes, as a change from the gray flannel which had such a tremendous vogue in France all last spring; and one-piece shorts are her contribution to the fad for short pants for resort wear.

The princess line, now supreme, still have its reign curtailed by the two-piece when the time comes to change. We say this on the basis of the increasing numbers of this style, not only in daytime fashions, but more recently, in evening fashions.

Madame Laevin clearly defined the fashions she endorsed; one of these was the little casquin or jacket of right metal, for both afternoon and evening. It is done in black and bright silver for an ensemble of bright green wooden called "bangala", trimmed with black astrakhan. This length of coat and this shape of sleeve are other emphasized Laevin features. The hat is of black with center fold of silver lams.

The Way Autumn Brides Take the Veil

Illustrated are bridal gowns and a dress for the bride's attendant. The bridal gown at the left is developed in off-white satin, and is interesting for its tunic styling, with a dipping movement at the back. The tailored bows at neckline and waistline are interesting details. The veil and headpiece are in net. The bride's attendant's gown is rose-pink satin with an elastic quality, with color contrast offered in the brown fur trimming at the shoulders. The drop-shoulder line and the princess shaping are important. The wedding gown in ivory satin had a yoke and sleeve sections in lace. This gown also repeats the molded line and the drop-shoulder expression. Cream net makes the veil, interesting for its pleated border.

Illustrated are costumes for autumn. The model at the left, a shirtwaist frock, interesting for its sheer blouse over a ruffled camisole, its wool skirt, and the high collar with bow.

The companion costume has a dramatic appeal, fashioned of black Lyon velvet, the skirt slim and slashed at the hem, the jacket with drop-shoulder treatment. Especial attention is called to the muff and long box in white fox.

The club voted to act as hostesses at the Y. W. C. A. fall rally to be held on Friday, October 20, and Mrs. Arthur Friton will act as chairman for the afternoon and Mrs. James Rowe for the evening.

Following the business session a social hour was enjoyed over which Mrs. R. G. Lewis presided. A birthday cake with six candles in honor of the birthday of the club was a feature of the refreshments.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday, October 26, with Dr. Frederic Holcomb as the speaker.

SHOKAN

Group pictures taken 2 weeks ago of Shokan school, of which Mrs. E. C. Burgher is the teacher, were received Wednesday. The photograph was one of the clearest ever taken of a local group according to those who have seen the copies. The oldest picture of the local school in existence today was taken about 40 years ago while Prof. "Sandy" Finger of Santeries was teacher of the "big room" and Miss Elizabeth Barnett presided over the younger children. Mr. and Mrs. George Egan and daughter of Brooklyn are spending two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brundage of the mountain road. The Egans are looking for a small tract of land with a view to building a house and making their home in the north shore country.

A wedding of October 12, 1932, was that which united William Bush, a resident of northern Marlborough, and Mary J. Mackay, well-known young woman of Krumville. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Harry Cornford, pastor of the Ashokan M. E. Church, and witnesses to the nuptials were Aaron Mackay and Eliza Bush.

Members of the local troop of Boy Scouts, who had planned to go on a hike Thursday, postponed the trip on account of the current subscription campaign. Several of the boys were taken for a long automobile ride by Fred Adair, master machinist down at the gatehouse of the reservoir, and one of the boys, James Cunningham, chairman for the Kingston section of Ulster-Orange Council.

Thomas H. Spencer, Shokan's most successful trout fisherman, while greatly pleased over the reported stocking of the Hooper creek with legal sized trout recently, nevertheless confesses to feeling a little disturbed in one respect: he will find it harder than ever now spring to keep within the local taking limit for a day's fishing. The colonel, being a good sportsman, will continue to call it a day after taking his allotted 25 trout, but for a man who can fill his creel from the upper Esopus when other fishermen are swearing there's no trout in the creek, it's going to be tough work keeping the score down.

Edward Lerder has dug about 35 bushels of potatoes and already has sold some for $1.50 a bushel. Comparatively few local farmers have had as good success with their potatoes this year, and reports from other sections indicate a general shortage in the crop of these tubers. One farmer in the eastern part of the town who planted several bushels of potatoes, bought most of his winter's supply from a neighbor the other day. The combination of a prolonged drought and a plague of grubs proved too much for the crop generally.

Elephants Show Gravity Elephants that have been broken in to serve man frequently exhibit evidence of a high order of intelligence. In lifting a huge log on its trunk one of these big animals will calculate the center of gravity of the log very accurately, picking it up in such a way that the two ends, often of unequal diameters, will balance each other.

Charles Hall of Santa Cruz, Cal., built a table six feet in diameter from a single knot which grew on a redwood tree in the mountains near there.

Go Out and Get It

By LUCILLE BARNES

Wash. D.C.

JOAN YERSE closed her short-handled note book and looked across the smooth expanse of the glass-top desk at the handsome middle-aged executive at the other side.

"Excuse me to be picking up, Mr. Walker. How about a raise?"

Mr. Walker said the usual thing. "No chance of real improvement without continued economy. Besides, she wasn't worth a cent more than she got."

Joan looked bored, thought a moment, and then asked him if it would be putting him in a jam if she left that afternoon.

"Why, you couldn't possibly do that," he said. "You're the only person besides myself who knows about that deal in Pittsburgh. You must be sure. I'd be out hundreds of dollars if you should leave me now. There's a law against such a thing."

"Maybe so," she said, "but there's nothing to stop me from having a nervous breakdown or something, and never coming back. Except, possibly, seven dollars more a week."

"Make it four," he said.

"Split the difference, and make it five."

"Oh, all right."

"Thank you very much, Mr. Walker," she said in her most businesslike manner.

At ten minutes after five Joan was on her way to her favorite beauty parlor.

Joan was a favorite at the beauty parlor, not because of her docile approval of everything that Maggie and Maurice and Olga did, but because of her insistence on perfect work. To-day she had been even more exacting than usual. But her look of real, genuine approval at her reflection in the mirror as she went out was worth a great deal more to them than her somewhat-lavish tip.

"You are the loveliest woman in the world," Stanley Jones told her when she met him in the lobby of the Smith-Bradley. "Absolutely, you are the loveliest woman in the world," he told her again as they sat down at their table in the roof garden dining room. "Don't you know that you are gorgeous?"

Joan looked across the table, avoiding his direct glance by a tantalizing fraction of an inch.

"But I'm just a very ordinary sort of person," she said. "Just like thousands of other stenographers working to make an honest living in a big city."

"But you could do a great deal better than that if you only knew it. With your wonderful personality and intelligence. You don't half appreciate yourself. I don't believe you get a cent more than my own stenographer. And you're worth infinitely more to any man. You wouldn't even ask for a raise, I suppose, you shy little girl. With your personality and intelligence and charm, there would be no limit to what you could do. But the trouble is other people take advantage of you. What you should do is make up your mind what you want and then go out and get it, the same way other people do without half your ability."

"I don't like to be scolded," Joan told him. "I wish you'd say something nice."

"But, Joan, I've told you how—how adorable you are. I've said all the nice things I dare. You're the most wonderful woman I ever knew. You're positively glamorous."

"But I'm really not a bit glamorous," she said. "And the only time I ever pretend I am is when I'm with you. I never attract attention."

"But you could if you wanted to," he said. "If you wanted to doll up and use make-up and spend money on beauty parlors as other girls do. You know I've often wondered why you never used rouge or any of the other kinds of war paint."

"Oh, you're scolding me again," Joan told him. "First, because I didn't ask for a raise, and second because I don't go to beauty parlors."

"It's all part of the same old," Stanley said. "It's a fault that makes me love you all the more."

"But you just said you wanted me to doll up and go to beauty parlors."

"Not for my sake," he said. "Only for your own sake, to give you more confidence, and to make you seem as utterly lovely to yourself as you always do to me—so that other people would realize, and you'd know they realized, how charming you are."

"Perhaps I will sometime," said Joan. "Only men are likely to misunderstand a girl's motives."

"And that," said Stanley, "was precisely the sort of thing you would say. But don't you see, if you dolled up, they couldn't. Because with your exquisite taste, it wouldn't be obvious. They'd never even suspect it. Will you do it sometime for my sake?"

"Sometime," she said.

Stanley, utterly oblivious of the matter, put his hand over Joan's.

"The sometime will be when you have consented to be my wife," he said.

"And you won't ever tell me that I ought to make up my mind what I want and then go out and get it—as you told me I ought to ask for a raise?"

"No, Joan," he said. "Because if you'd ever gone out after things there would never have been a chance of persuading you to marry me."

LIQUOR CONTROL—As Others Do It

NO. 1—CANADIAN PROVINCES' SYSTEMS RANGE FROM "STRICT" TO "LIBERAL"

As its total of states ratifying the amendment toward the 36 required, America is becoming more interested in the regulatory systems employed by those countries where liquor now is sold legally. This, the first of a series of four articles concerning various plans, looks northward into Canada.

Toronto (AP).—Canadian liquor control systems range from "most liberal" to "very strict," with the provincial governments holding a steady hand on the bottle necks.

Quebec is in the "most liberal" class, and at the other extreme comes Ontario. Other provinces have systems patterned after those of the two large central provinces and ranging between in strictness.

Quebec Sell "All Corners."

In Quebec the government sells hard liquor in its own stores over the counter a bottle at a time to all comers, beer and light wines are sold in restaurants and hotels, and taverns cater to the straight beer drinkers. Beer also is sold in grocery stores and delivered to the householder's door on order.

The government commission sells Canadian, Scotch and Irish whiskies, all sorts of wines, liqueurs, brandies and so on. It imports only Guinness and Bass ale, the others being Canadian brands.

In 1921, the first year of operation, the commission made a profit of $2,860,000. Profits rose steadily until $9,000,000 was shown in the year ending May, 1930. Decline in the tourist trade as well as the economic slump cut profits to $3,700,000 in the fiscal year 1932-33.

Charities Get Share of Profits.

Each year the first million in profits goes to public charities, and the balance is devoted to roads and education.

Ontario's system is at the other extreme, so far as drinking is concerned. It bans consumption of intoxicants of any form in any place other than a private residence or hotel room used as a residence.

Liquor may be bought in all but one of Canada's nine provinces, under various degrees of control, Ontario's being the strictest and Quebec's the most liberal. The photo shows a Canadian woman leaving an Ontario government liquor store with a bottle of whiskey, which may be obtained under permit for consumption in residences or hotel rooms.

No liquor can be purchased without a permit good for one year and costing $2 for hard liquor and $1 for beer and wine. Each purchase is entered on the permit at the time and forms a record which is frequently used in police court cases of bootlegging and drunken driving.

Permit Plan Profitable.

Purchases of either spirits or beer are virtually unlimited, but abuses, however, are watched closely. The commission sells in government stores almost every kind of alcoholic beverage.

The permit system act, which went into effect in June, 1927, brought profits of $10,000,000 in 1931, $9,250,000 in 1932, and an estimated $8,250,000 for 1933.

Of the nine Canadian provinces, only Prince Edward Island has prohibition. All others have some form of government sale.

The Scott act, passed by the Dominion, became law in Prince Edward Island in 1889 after plebiscites in three counties, and the entire province became dry, as it has been since with the exception of three years when Charlottetown, the capital, voted against the act under the local option clause, the rest of the province meanwhile remaining dry. Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick have systems similar to the two larger provinces. All provinces reap substantial profits from the sale of liquor.

Beer is coming to the fore today as a question in Ontario. Legalization of beer in the United States has brought a drop in tourist traffic across the line and focused attention on efforts to relax liquor laws to allow beer by the glass.

Stairs

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

In most houses where there are little children there will be found gates at the head of one or more flights of stairs to keep the children from falling down.

Often they serve their purpose for a large part of the time, but almost inevitably there will be at least one occasion when the gate is left open or unlatched and some enterprising child takes a header. Generally the result is no more than a few bruises and a fright, but sometimes they are more serious.

In themselves the gates are all right, but the safety of the child should not depend entirely on so uncertain a protection. The only sure thing is to teach the baby how to negotiate the steps himself as soon as he begins to crawl.

It will take several lessons to show him how to back up to them cautiously, and then, reaching out with his knees, to put them down one after the other from step to step, his hands always a step up, but then his knees, but it is quite possible if the mother or nurse is willing to take the pains.

When he learns to walk the same process must be gone through again, only this time he must be taught to hold on to the bannisters as he carefully sets down one foot after the other always bringing his two feet together on one stair before he makes the next step.

Once the trick has been learned the mother's mind can be at rest, and the gate, even if left in place, is no longer a necessity any more than it would be for an older child.

By means of these simple lessons the child is given more freedom, and the first big lesson in self-reliance has been achieved.

Kingston: "The Bowery." That most famous of all American streets, the Bowery, is the setting of this remarkable new picture, a picture that brings together Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper, one of the real movie teams of the present day. Young Mr. Cooper plays the made to order role of "Swipes," newsboy extraordinary, and his hero is the gangling, sloppy Chuck Connors, big shot of the Bowery. Then there is the smooth and tricky Steve Brodie, playing his cleverness against the blunt forcefulness of Connors. The love and devotion of "Swipes" for the rough and ready Connors is a jewel of character acting, splendidly done by Jackie Cooper. It's a common story of common people on a common street, brilliant in direction and cast, one of the really fine pictures of the year. George Raft, Fay Wray and Pert Kelton are featured in a large cast. The direction is by Raoul Walsh. Superlative entertainment.

Orpheum: "Moonlight and Pretzels" and "Unknown Valley." A musical comedy number is offered as the first part of the Orpheum double feature, a singing, dancing show that concerns the rise of a young song writer to the heights of his profession, while the little girl back home trusts and waits for him to send for her now that he is in the money. Roger Pryor, Mary Brian, Leo Carrillo, and a host of radio stars and entertainers make up the large cast. A lavish show, with some unusual dance ensembles, some clever comedy, and several good songs. "Unknown Valley" is the latest of the Buck Jones westerns, and it is also one of his best. Danger, mystery, suspense, action, hard riding and fast shooting are all to be found in this show.

Broadway: "The Solitaire Man." Most of the action in this murder mystery takes place on an air liner flying between Paris and London. The ever fascinating Herbert Marshall, as a crook among a group of other crooks abroad, plays his most engaging role since appearing on an American screen, and a distinguished cast lends ample support. Most of the crooks are well bred gentlemen, who decide to change their mode of existence into honest living. Unexpectedly, after they have decided to go straight, a circumstance forces them to abandon their plans, and Herbert Marshall, the smoothest thief of all, gets his companions out of a trying situation. Clever, amusing and well done, this mystery is grand entertainment. Elizabeth Allen, Lionel Atwill and Mary Boland are members of the cast. "Tarzan the Fearless," the serial thriller with Buster Crabbe, is also being shown as an added feature.

Tomorrow.

Kingston: Same.
Orpheum: "Perfect Understanding" and "The Pride of the Legion." Gloria Swanson's English made talkie of domestic unrest proves to be an average drama of modern matrimonial ideas, and Miss Swanson, in the starring role, supported by her new husband, Michael Farmer, does good work. Rin Tin Tin sparkles in the other feature, "Pride of the Legion," a melodrama of a dog hero. On Sunday's bill, the serial "Gordon of Ghost City" will also be shown as a regular part of the program.
Broadway: Same.

HOLLYWOOD
SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Conway Tearle's story is one of the classic tales of Alimand.

He is back in the movie fold once more, this time welcomed, although for the five years before he left for Broadway his presence was rather pointedly overlooked.

He now is playing a leading role opposite Alice Brady in "The Vinegar Tree," but when he left Hollywood two years ago he was so little in demand that, in his own words, "I wasn't making enough to feed my dog."

Movie Old-Timer

English-born, descended from a family that for generations followed the stage, Tearle first entered films as a profession in 1922, when he was lured to Hollywood from Broadway by the then magnificent (and not so bad now) salary of twenty-five hundred a week. For several years before that he had played in films in the east between stage engagements, and so is a veritable movie old-timer.

In Hollywood he embarked on a brilliant career as the handsome, sartorially perfect hero to the screen's loveliest women. He ranked high in fan mail and was a box office power. That he was constantly cast as the dress-suited lover—he had to argue and plead before obtaining the virtue of outdoor roles in "The Great Divide"—may have contributed to his decline. But he made the fatal blunder of arguing with the powers that were, and soon he found himself outside, dependent on the occasional roles that "quickie" companies cared to give him.

He's Welcome Now

The old breach is healed now, and Tearle walks on the welcome mat—just like any other actor who scores a big hit on the stage. Tearle's success was in "Dinner at Eight," in the role of course, of the fallen movie star. In his quiet way, Tearle calls a spade a spade.

"Barring his drinking," he says, "I was that fellow. Like him, I was out of the picture. When I felt I couldn't get anything to do, except a poorly paid part now and then. For instance, I had worked in a serial—making thirteen episodes in one week—and I wouldn't tell you how little I got for it. I thought I'd better try the stage again while I could."

PACKARD IS BUILDING
AMERICA'S WORST ROAD

America's worst motor car road is now being built at the plant of the Packard Motor Car Company. It is being made of granite boulders and cobble stones. Just to make sure it will be a supremely bad road engineers deliberately designed into it cobble paved holes, ruts and bumps. At one point deep holes alternate on each side so that a car will be given a series of terrible wrenching takes.

The prize had road is a part of a new testing plant, or proving ground, which is being built on a ten acre tract of land inside the Packard factory.

It is a supplementary testing grounds to the Packard Proving Grounds, where our main testing work will of course be carried on, night and day as usual," explained E. F. Roberts, Packard vice president of manufacturing. "It will give us a standardized road test for all our cars. We have always taken each car out on a road test as it left the assembly line to guard against squeaks and rattles and to check the accuracy of all the necessary adjustments for a perfectly tuned new car."

This new auxiliary proving grounds will permit us to do better, more uniform road testing work and without going outside the factory gates."

Besides the rough road the new proving grounds will contain two

High School Assembly

In the high school assembly yesterday Harry Halverson, president of the Kingston Kiwanis Club awarded prizes to the winners of the recent poster contest held in the school by this club; later on the same program Walter Donnarumma, local colonel of the NRA, gave a very inspiring talk about the NRA to the student body.

Mr. Halverson, after telling briefly of the value of each winning poster for the coming Kiwanis Ball, awarded prizes to the following people: The first prize went to Charlotte Proctor, the second to Emily Busby and the third to Hugo Schroeder.

Following this Mr. Donnarumma, an high school alumnus, spoke on the purpose, value and need of the NRA. He pointed out that since the beginning of the NRA over 2 1/2 millions of men have been put back to work, and millions of dollars have again been put back into circulation. He particularly stressed the point to the student body that they and their parents should and must buy only from NRA dealers and merchants if the NRA is to be a success.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Speaking of the world series, it develops that only lately England sprang a surprise on Wales in the "sixteenth baseball international match" at Liverpool, where 8,000 people saw the Welsh side well beaten with "eight men to spare."

This should take us down a peg or two at a time when America complacently considers the "world championship" is being settled by the Senators-Giants tussle.

As to the details of the British match, the London Graphic and News reports: "Wales had won every match since 1923, the year the Yankees first won a world series in the U. S. A. and England had only two wins. But in this game England put out their best pitching capture, A. R. Scott, who went through the Welsh side in quick time during the first inning."

Then, with W. Hunter, whose play throughout the game was brilliant from both the bowling box and when he was batting, England were able to establish a first-inning lead of 15 runs.

"Wales were all out for the lowest score they have made against the English side with a total of 33. R. Roper, the Penylan pitcher, did most of the destructive work when England went in to bat, and although the Englishmen passed the Welsh score with half the side, they finished only 15 runs in front."

The Cricket Influence.
"Wales improved in the second innings, although it was a hard struggle to get runs from Scott, and only two batsmen, G. Whitcombe and F. Davies, were able to get into double figures. The Welsh captain tried frequent changes in an effort to keep down the runs but although England lost two batsmen in the first round they went on steadily to run up the score. At the end of the third round they were three runs in front and had only lost three men."

"The totals were: England, 45 and 43 for three; Wales, 33 and 55." Apparently some adjustments will have to be made and agreements reached before an Anglo-American battle for baseball supremacy is developed.

"Never Mind The Ball."
To the average British sporting fan, rugby football has more interest and appeal than perhaps any other branch of athletics in the old country. Here again, it is a sport with its American counterpart in a revised form. To its defense comes a British writer, Howard Marshall, in the following:

"Those who have not watched rugby may suspect that it is dull; they may have heard tales of endless scrimmages; they may even remember the old story of a county match in Yorkshire, when the ball was kicked over the grand stand and lost, and a burly forward, rolling up his sleeves, remarked: 'Never mind 't' ball, lads; let's get on with 't' game.'"

"To imagine, however, that rugby football is in effect a protracted brawl is to be very wide of the mark. Although team-work plays a large and essential part in the game, individual brilliance is no less important, and there is nothing in sport more thrilling than the sight of a fast three-quarter with the ball in his hands running, swerving, flaking his way through a bewildered defence in a glorious dash for the line."

Wild Horse Graceful
There is a beauty and grace about a wild horse, and a pride of movement, with a bounding, unfettered spirit and redness of nostril and flaring of eye, which pass like a shadow when they are captured and "broken." And though they may go wild again, after returning to their unfenced home, this beauty and spirit never return to them. Once the withering touch of man has reached them it never departs—Our Doubt Animals.

Queer Geographic Names

Cranberry Picker of Double Trouble, New Jersey.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—W.S.U. Service.

WHILE there are reports that some mothers have already named their new-born babes for the national recovery act, Nina, a small Iowa town, denies that its name is so modern. It was named for a woman more than a half century before Gen. Hugh Johnson took the oath of office.

Names, cities and towns have many origins. First families have left their famous surnames to designate post offices and railroad stations in the United States, and in addition many humble folk have contributed their more familiar appellations such as Dad, Bill, Nick, Tim, Floe, Vick and Maggie. Aside from family names the homely nouns and adjectives of the work-a-day world have found their way by the score to maps and sign posts.

Greasy Creek, Tub, Biscuit, Cheap, Busy and Dimple are Kentucky towns. There are Horse Heaven, Humptulips, Gooseprairie and Steptoe in Washington state.

Pie Town, Dusty, Gallup and High Rolls are in New Mexico; Jelly, Needles and Likely in California; and Sopchoppy, Perky and Frostproof in Florida.

Illinois has Sandwich, Joy and Mud-dy, while across the state line in Indiana there are Speed, Economy and Harmony. Trump, Vim, Finest and Jones are in Colorado; Bumble Bee, Sunflow, Wicket and Cactus in Arizona; Asbestos, Ladiesburg, Feather and Appeal in Maryland; and Dead-water, Grandstone, Thorofare and Merepoint in Maine.

In Minnesota there is Balletus, Happyland, Otter Tail, Money Creek, Knife River and Embarrass; and in Mississippi, Arm, Lemon, Whynot, Chunky, Shivers and Soso.

Montana's Bay Horse, Big Arm, Giltedge and Pray are equally as odd as North Carolina's Nags Head, Bear-wallow, Pee Dee, Shoe, Toast, Topnot and Worry; and Missouri's Rat, Gang, Damsite, Clever and Enough.

Accord, Teaticket and Feeding Hills are in Massachusetts; Avon Location, Inkster, Ahmeek and Honor in Michigan; Echo, Happy Jack and Water Proof in Louisiana; Leaky in North Dakota; and Novelty, Overpeck, Long Bottom and Charm in Ohio.

More of the Queer Names.

Oklahoma's contribution to odd place names is Antlers, Hominy, Stick, Slim and Scrapper; while Oregon has Wagonite, Sixes, Tree, Tree and Fossil. New York state gives Horse-heads, Sag Harbor, Silvernails, Taphank and Whiteface; and New Jersey, Colt's Neck, Peapack, Tranquility, Changewater and Cheeks.

Goodnight, Razor, Fort Spunky, Happy and Gunsight are towns in Texas; while Pennsylvania has Slickshanny, Showers, Moosic and Bird in Hand. Cowpens, Silverstreet, Nine Times and Ninety Six are in South Carolina; Faith, Tea and Twilight in South Dakota; Devils Slide in Utah; and Idol, Inksp, Littlecrab and Shop Spring in Tennessee.

Ferry passengers calling "hey" to "Si," a ferryman, are said to have named Harst, Virginia. Other odd names in the Old Dominion are Modest Town, Cap, Crabbottom, Dandy, Smoky Ordinary, Traffic, Fancy Gap, Duty and Success; while its neighbor, West Virginia, has Joker, Cutlips, Smoke Hole, Dinger, Hazy, Odd, Pink and Quick. In Wisconsin there is Luck, New Diggins and Rib Lake; in Wyoming a Doggie, Badwater, Four Horse and Ten Sleep.

What Cheer, Promise City, Coin, Nodaway, Stout and Wick are Iowa towns; Cad, Deepwater, Dewyrose and Ty Ty are in Georgia; Coccolalla, Cuprum, Inkton and Notus in Idaho; Costa, Peck and Potwin in Kansas; and Doughboy, Flats, Hlire, Rescue and Wroot in Nebraska.

Half a dozen of Arkansas' place names is a row sketch for the imaginative a thumb-nail story: Lost Corner, Reform, Health, Prosperity, Romance, and Love.

Names of women of distinction adorn many of the world's cities, rivers, provinces, and islands. Lady Franklin island, near Baffin island in the Arctic circle, is named for the wife of Sir John Franklin, the explorer who lost his life in first finding the Northwest passage through the green ice of the Polar regions. There is perhaps no more beautiful story of untiring devotion and persistent effort than that of Lady Jane Franklin who, after the failure of many attempts, fitted out a ship which, though it brought back to her the definite proof of the loss of her husband's expedition, established his achievement of his object.

Pocahontas and Victoria.

The picturesque stories of the little Indian princess Pocahontas always will hold a loved place in the hearts of American childhood. Counties in Iowa and West Virginia, villages in Bond county, Illinois, and Cape Girardeau county, Missouri, and the Rocky mountains in Alberta, Canada, are named for her.

Queen Victoria's name is wrapped around the British empire from the capital of British Columbia, over the heart of Africa at Victoria, Nyang and Victoria Falls, and beyond into the Queensland and Victoria in far away Australia.

America, too, in its early days of colonization paid its tribute to the queens of the mother country and the gracious ladies who braved the dangers of untried shores with the lords. Elizabeth, a cape in Maine, as Elizabeth City in Virginia, as well as the state itself, together with some twenty-five other places in the United States, bear the name of the clever, witty, versatile coquette, who took a dissension-torn England and whipped it into a place as a world power. Elizabeth Carter, the charming wife of one of the aristocratic proprietors of New Jersey, shares with Queen Elizabeth some of the honors of the name. Elizabethtown in North Carolina, and Elizabeth City in New Jersey, are named for her.

There wasn't any Marthas, of Martha Vineyard, however. The name is supposed to be a corruption of Martin, a friend of the discoverer of the island. The word Vineyard was added later on account of the vine grapes found on the island. Violent the name which Lief Ericson gave to North American continent, was suggested in a similar manner.

Maryland and Virginia are fair bespattered with the names of the queens and princesses of England; very state-names themselves have been taken from that of Queen Henrietta Maria, the wife of Charles I. and the disputably fortunate estate of Elizabeth. Then, too, there are Annapocas named for the wife of James I. of England; and Anne Arundel and Carroll counties in Maryland, called after the wives of two of the Calverts, Fluvanna county and the North Anna river in Virginia named for Queen Anne; and Charlotte, Amelia and Caroline counties and Charlottesville the home of the University of Virginia, all called for the wives and daughters of the English kings.

Marietta, Ohio, was named for the haughty, charming Marie Antoinette, the Alutian islands, off the coast of Alaska, when that territory was Russian, were known as Catherine Archipelago. In honor of Catherine the Great, Ekaterinburg was named for the Catherine who ruled Russia through her husband, Peter the Great.

OLD WOODEN DAM ALONG

THE SAWKILL REMOVED

Woodstock, Oct. 14.—By order of the Town Board Frank Bradley, village contractor, last week-end completed the work of removing the old wooden dam along the Sawkill at the rear of the General Walter McLaw residence, near the Country Club.

The old dam, long a relic of the old Rye Mill, and which building was converted into the Country Club house when the property was purchased, has been a source of potential property damage and the cause of much inconvenience and unnecessary backwash during high water periods. In many ways, during flood rains, it gave the trouble of water over the graduated series of rock ledges a picturesque appearance in the manner in which the rushing creek seemed to hang suspended for a bit and then to surge forward with terrific momentum.

In the future it is believed that the unrestricted flow of water will clear the narrow throat of the creek basin, leaving many backyards high and dry, and also lessening the hazard of loss of life. The surplus of water can be distributed adequately in the Kingston Water Supply reservoir two miles below the village where there is an area for expansion and a strong, high dam.

Flashes of Life
Sketches in Brief

Blue Eagle Triumphs

Helen, Mont.—The Blue Eagle has vanquished a foe without moving a talon.

A large chicken hawk, claws open and eyes aglare, swooped out of the air at a huge NKA emblem pasted on the plate glass window of a Helena coal company. D. J. Kane and Ralph Strandberg, talking in the office, were startled by the thud and looked up in time to see the hawk swoop down from the dust, shake its head and wobble away.

Homeside Man

Persons, Kas.—L. E. Gregg, shoe salesman, has decided his generosity to a wanderer two years ago was not misplaced.

A man in shabby clothing and badly worn shoes entered Gregg's store on a cold day in 1931 and asked if he could be trusted for the price of a pair of shoes. Gregg gave him a pair of cheap shoes and soon afterward forgot the incident.

A letter accompanied by a money order for the price of the foot gear was delivered to Gregg this week with the explanation the man had obtained work in Detroit.

Youthful Grandmother

Marshfield, Ore.—The youngest grandmother in Oregon, so far as is known here, is Mrs. Peter E. Mathews of Marshfield. She is just 32. A girl was born this week to her daughter, Mrs. Joe Baker, 18.

How Life Begins—Coincidentally
Erie, Pa.—Erie literally teems with coincidences. There are two families of Robert Warrens. The two Mrs. Warrens presented their husbands with sons within a month. Each mother was in the hospital 11 days. Each baby weighed the same. The families plan to get acquainted.

Moving Day

New York.—Moving men have a big job on their hands today. The Westinghouse offices are being moved from downtown Broadway to Rockefeller center, an operation involving 10,000 pieces and requiring 240 vans. But the job is being simplified by use of blueprints to designate where all the office equipment is to go. The movers say they will have the new office fixed up by Monday morning.

For The 13th Time

Chicago.—"Judge," said Mrs. Bernice Skirmont, "I've left him twelve times and been reconciled to him twelve times," referring to her husband.

This is Friday the 13th," said Judge Joseph Sabath, "why don't you defy superstition and become reconciled for the thirteenth time?" Mrs. Skirmont agreed.

A Mistake

Kendallville, Ind.—Harvey Pontius made the mistake of scratching a match to light his pipe on trousers soaked with oil.

His trousers were burned off. A physician treated two badly burned legs.

MODENA

Modena, Oct. 14.—Miss Kathryn Ross entertained members of the Sunshine and Tri-mu Classes of the Modena Methodist Sunday School at her home Monday evening of the past week, when members were present from Plattkill, Ardona and Modena.

Joseph E. Hasbrouck, Jr., attended the 44th annual dinner of the Dutchess county branch of the Holland Society of New York, which was held in New York city recently.

Miss Lucille Roth of Forest Glen was a guest of Miss Helen Rinehart during the past week.

Mrs. Frank Lozier of Saratoga was a recent guest of her sister, Mrs. Ruelle Ward.

Mrs. Orville Seymour of Ardona was a caller on friends in this place Wednesday.

Eber Smith, of the State Hospital in Danville, is spending some time at his home in this place.

Mrs. Edward Hartney entertained her aunt, Mrs. Lott Ellis, from Walden, at her home Thursday.

Joseph E. Hasbrouck, Sr., and granddaughter, Miss Leah Hasbrouck, left town for Fort Lauderdale Thursday, where they will spend the winter months.

SUNDAY MAVERICK CONCERT
IN WOODSTOCK ART GALLERY

Woodstock, Oct. 14.—Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock the regular Sunday Maverick concert will be held in the Art Gallery, Woodstock. The sponsors have engaged the facilities of the gallery, which include light and heat, in order not to disappoint the many who wish to attend as long as possible throughout the season.

The music will be divided into two parts, featuring in each case a string quintet, of which two cellos will form an interesting and important group. The musicians to be heard are Gerald Kunz, first violin; Leon Barzin, second violin; Englebert Roentgen and Horace Britt, cellos; Paul Lemay, viola.

The program is:
I
String Quintet—Bocherini, Old Italian

II
String Quintet—Schubert.

When J. Omar Samson retires from active service late in September as mail carrier in Marysville, Cal., he will have walked 100,000 miles in delivering mail in 33 years, he estimates.

BurgessSAFETY FIRST AND COMFORT NEXT

IF ANYONE should ask Jerry Muskrat how to build a house the advice he would give would be something like this: "Build it for safety first and comfort next." There isn't one of the little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest but will say that this is the best of good advice.

Eren Peter Rabbit will say so, though an everybody knows he doesn't live up to it. If safety means hard work Peter will take a chance with danger every time. Even when his own comfort is concerned Peter will avoid the work if possible. Isn't it funny how lazy and shortsighted some people can be?

But Jerry Muskrat isn't one of these. Oh, my, no. No. Indeed. When he dug those tunnels from the cellar of his house down under water over to the bank and to the deepest part of the Smiling Pool he was thinking of safety and preparing for it. And safety was his first thought as he built the walls above water. He knew that when Jack Frost should come and cover the Smiling Pond with ice it would be an easy matter for Old Man Coyote and Reddy and Granny Fox to get to his house. If the walls were thin and poorly made they might be torn open. Then, too, the cold might creep through and freeze him. For some reason, just why he didn't know, he had a feeling that the coming winter was going to be extra cold.

So Jerry made those walls extra thick. He chose the stoutest canals and rubbers he could find and dug up the biggest roots he could manage. He went a little way up the Laughing Brook for sticks. All these things he towed across the Smiling Pool to the new house and worked into the walls. He dug up mud and worked it in with the rubbers and canals and sticks in a way that only he and Paddy the Beaver can.

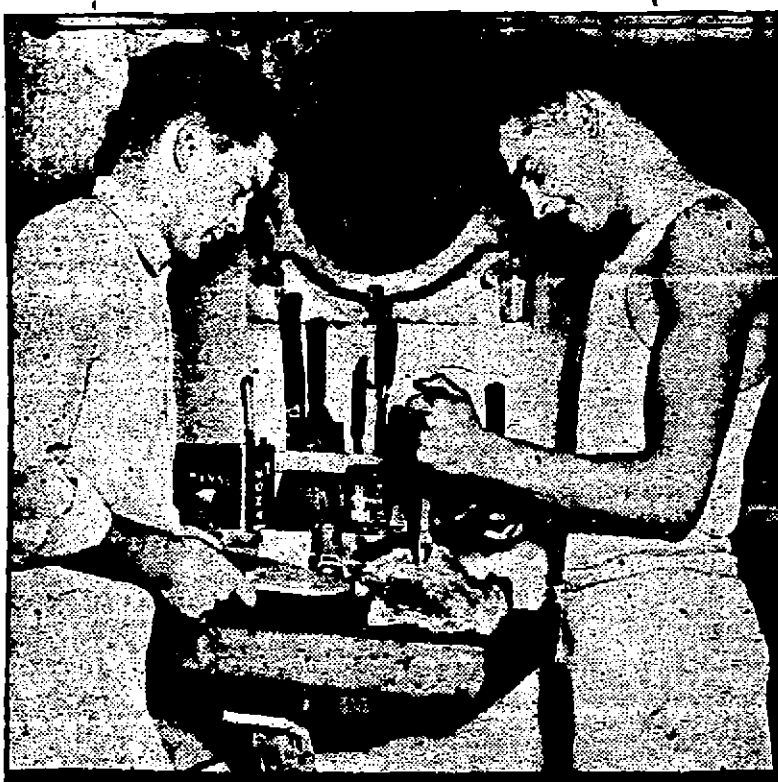

Peter Rabbit, watching from the bank, turned up his nose. "It is nothing but a pile of rubbish," said he. In truth Peter wasn't to be blamed for saying so. That is what it looked like—just a great pile of rubbish. What Peter couldn't see was that in the center of it was a nice big roomy chamber, one big enough for Jerry and two or three friends to sleep in in comfort. Not only this, but it was high enough to be dry even though the water should rise quite a lot in the Smiling Pool. And this nice dry chamber connected with the water cellar beneath, from which led tunnels to the bank and to deep water.

So, while in his tunnels and thick walls Jerry was looking out for safety, in the nice, big, dry bedroom he was looking out for comfort. If he couldn't have had the safety with the comfort he would have chosen the safety. But as long as he could have both he intended to have both.

Higher rose the walls and presently the bedroom was roofed over. As had been the case in the old house, tiny spaces were left for fresh air to come in and bad air to go out. No one knows better than Jerry how necessary fresh air is, no matter how cold the weather. So he took care not to seal the top of his roof with mud, that the air might pass through. Many nights Jerry worked and when at last he laid the last stick and the last bulrush in place he felt that his new house was worth all that he had gone through. All the hard work, and even the terrible experience with Hooty the Owl.

That the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland, founded in 1774, was the first organization of its kind in the world. Until 1848, golf balls were made of leather and stuffed with feathers.

When Pins Were a Luxury

Before the advent of that necessary little contraption, the pin, skewers of silver, wood, and bone were used, and very clumsy they must have been, too. In 1543 when the common or garden variety of pin was invented it was considered a luxury, and although it was intended for the upper classes, all women became avid for it. Preparing for the day—there were certain ones during the year—when the makers of pins sold their wares women of all degrees set aside coins they called their "pin money" for the event. Thus was born the phrase we hear even to this day.
